THE MONIER HAMPTONS LOOK
How to make your Hamptons dream a reality

Get the look: Make your Hamptons dream a reality

Narelle Hinz decided to build her house in Brisbane's Bridgeman Downs, on a vacant block of land behind the family's existing house. She opted for the Hamptons look – commissioning her husband's son, Peter Hinz of All Type Builders to create a gracious, classic home for her and husband Marshall.

Because the build was just behind their previous house, Narelle was onsite during much of the process and says she couldn't be more pleased with the end result.

"It was a totally different house than what we had before," she says. "We had a Georgian-style home before, but this one's in the style of the Hamptons. I just wanted something sort of relaxed and casual, more classic."

Narelle and Marshall have built two previous houses together, and brought their knowledge from those projects to this home. They chose not to use an architect, but instead used a designer/draftsperson who prepared the plans under their instruction to achieve their Hamptons dream look.

"I did everything that I wanted this time around," says Narelle. "I just tried to keep it as close as I could to the Hamptons style."

With that in mind, the slate-look of Monier's Nullarbor tiles suited the aesthetic she wanted, Narelle explains.

"The shape of the Terracotta Nullarbor tile was exactly what we wanted. Terracotta's great because it never fades, that colour will be there forever. It's worth spending the extra money I think."

The exterior weatherboards have been painted a soft grey/beige shade – known in the industry as 'greige' and a rising colour trend. The muted palette is in line with the Hamptons aesthetic and is offset by the dark roof and white timber trims.

A soft green hedge as a front fence adds a traditional feel, framing the front of the house, balanced by the timber panelled garage door and marble front patio and entrance.

THE MONIER HAMPTONS LOOK

How to make your Hamptons dream a reality

1 Pastel exterior palette

Narelle chose Cabots Exterior paint in Grain Harvest, a calming neutral that echoed the coastal/Hamptons feel.

2 Nullarbor terracotta tiles in Peak, Monier Roofing

These slate-look tiles created the exact effect that Narelle was after, and the dark shade complemented the pale exterior paint.

3 Stone trims

The front steps and porch were laid with travertine marble tiles, which are long-wearing and even improve with age, despite being in high-traffic areas. Available from Schots Home Emporium, www.schots.com.au

4 Windows

Windows by Trend in Pearl White, to complement the white timber trim. Windows can be custom made in various shapes.

5 Hedge fence

Consider growing a hedge as a front fence. Hedges will screen noise and visitors and even filter air if you live on a busy road. Our pick? Sweet-smelling Murraya, also known as Orange Jasmine. Available from nurseries nationally.

6 Timber panel garage doors

Hamptons-style garage door from Best Doors, www.bestdoors.com.au

ELEMENTAL™ SHINGLE

 CREATED FOR THE ELEMENTS

Elemental is a contemporary and innovative product that is extremely strong yet lightweight. We recommend this in the shingle profile with an exfoliated stone type finish, perfect for the Hamptons style. Its thin edge creates a streamlined look similar to that of a traditional shingle used in that classic American home.
